FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Palm Beach Community College to Host Community Forum at Lake Worth High School

(April 6, 2004 - Lake Worth, Fla.) Palm Beach Community College is taking the message about its programs and services out into the community.

The College is holding a community forum from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. April 20 at Lake Worth High School, 1701 Lake Worth Road. College personnel will be on hand to provide information on various degree and training programs, admissions and financial aid assistance as well as information about employment opportunities and small contract opportunities with PBCC.

PBCC will also receive input from the community on how the College can expand or improve its programs and services. The forum is part of the College's ongoing outreach efforts and its work to promote diversity.

The forum is free and open to the public. Spanish and Creole language translators will be available. For more information, call (561) 868-3029.
