FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Palm Beach Community College to hold community forum May 23

(Lake Worth, Fla. – May 4, 2007) Palm Beach Community College is once again taking the message about its programs and services into the community.

The College will hold a community forum at 6:30 p.m. May 23 at Lake Worth High School, 1701 Lake Worth Road. College personnel will be on hand to provide information and answer questions about the various degree and certificate programs, admissions and financial aid.

The forum, themed "Bringing Opportunities Closer to You," is part of the College's ongoing outreach efforts and its diversity initiatives. This will mark the fourth year that the College has held the forum at Lake Worth High School, which is the site of one of the School District of Palm Beach County's largest adult education programs.

The forum is free and open to the public. Spanish and Creole language translators will be available. For more information, call (561) 967-PBCC.

About Palm Beach Community College: Serving more than 46,000 students annually, Palm Beach Community College is the largest institution of higher education in Palm Beach County, providing associate degrees, professional certificates, career and customized training and lifelong learning.
