FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

The Breakers' landscape manager will share his expertise in a PBCC gardening course

(Nov. 27, 2007 – Palm Beach Gardens) Lloyd Singleton, one of the most prominent garden authorities in the area, will teach homeowners, gardeners and lifelong learners all about "Annuals and Non-Woody Perennials" at Palm Beach Community College in Palm Beach Gardens beginning in January. Singleton is the landscape manager for The Breakers.

The Breakers is famous for its annuals gardens, and learning from Singleton is a rare opportunity. Singleton will teach how to plan a year-round garden with seamless transitions, site preparation, soil amendment, costing and sourcing annuals, maintenance, fertilization and troubleshooting. A visit to the gardens at The Breakers is included.

The class meets on Thursday evenings, beginning on Jan. 10 and ending in May. The cost is $190. Registration begins immediately.

PBCC is offering two more classes for hobbyists and homeowners: "Plant Selections for Landscape Situations" (choosing the right plant for the right place) which involves visiting many of the local gardens, "Plants of South Florida Ecosystems (Native Plant Identification)" and "Turf Grasses."
