PBCC names student trustee for 2009-2010

(Lake Worth, Fla. – July 16, 2009) Eliezer Kinberg of Boca Raton has been named the new student trustee to serve on the Palm Beach Community College Board of Trustees for 2009-2010.

Kinberg, 21, was born in Israel and grew up in New York City. He completed the PSAV program in massage therapy on the Boca Raton campus in December 2007. He is due to graduate with his Associate in Arts degree at the end of the Summer 2009 term with a 3.98 grade point average. He is a member of the Center for Student Leadership and vice president of the International Student Club. Kinberg was awarded a full scholarship to Florida Atlantic University but elected to return to PBCC to serve as student trustee.

“When I learned that the position of student trustee was available for the upcoming school year, I was very excited,” said Kinberg. “As the student trustee I’m in a position to influence the future direction of the college while giving back to PBCC and the community.”

Kinberg will enter the Bachelor of Applied Science program in the fall with a concentration in health administration. He is the ninth student to serve in the nonvoting position since trustees created it in 2001 to ensure student issues and concerns are represented.

“Serving as student trustee is a privilege that I do not take lightly,” said Kinberg. “I’m looking forward to working with the students, faculty, staff and fellow board members to meet the challenges the College will face over the next year.”
