ITEM 1. LW PTLC 'pedagogical pearls' series Tuesday September 13 at 2pm (place - LW library second floor meeting room). Title: Integrating Formative Assessments, Technology and Flipping in the Hybrid Class or how to get students to prepare for class work. PTLC is encouraging all faculty to participate and share if they can in this new series!

Discussion: This year the PTLC will begin holding short 20 minute talks. The first will be presented by Professor Trish Froehlich. Profess Froehlich also invited other members of the cluster to present their own topics of interest via a pedagogical pearls event.

Data source: Professor Froehlich

Action: Contact the PTLC for more information to present; register for events via employee web.

ITEM 2. Health Assessment Project

Discussion: No changes to the HSC 2100 project were made.

ITEM 3. Award Stipend

Discussion: We did receive the $2000 grant again this year to provide student with awards. Students from the nutrition courses will now be included. We discussed changing the name of the award to the Health and Nutrition Project of Excellence or the Exemplary Behavior Change award. In addition, there was a discussion whether or not to offer the award to more than 10 students and include honorable mention.

Action:

We agreed that all full time faculty in health and nutrition will award 2 students 100$ per student for the Dr. Jacqueline Rogers Academic Excellence Award for Health and Nutrition. This award will be based for the health education faculty on our Health Behavior Change major course project. The nutrition faculty will utilize their individual major course project for award determination. In addition, each faculty member may nominate as many honorable mention students as deemed appropriate. If a faculty member does not have 2 students of award winning appropriateness they will offer their award to the remaining faculty members for nomination of a student of their own. The faculty award and honorable mention submissions will be submitted no later than November 28th to the cluster chair for submission to Dean Rogers.
